Pros and Cons of the Whiskey Poisoning Cases-Rev. John G. Dutton Off for Europe-Body of Hopkinton Man Ordered Held for Examination.

Next Sunday will be Anti-Saloon Field day in Westerly, with special sermons in nearly all the churches, the pulpits being supplied by preachers other than the regular pastors. As Westerly has always been an anti-saloon town, there are some who cannot understand why Westerly should have been selected as the place for holding the special field day services against saloons where none exists.

In view of the current opinion that many of the recent sudden deaths were due to drinking poisoned whiskey in this no-license town, caused a local clergyman to remark that while he kould not consistently vote for license, he believed that the general plan of regulated licensed saloons was preferable to the present illegal conduct of the liquor business in Westerly, and, while he would work and vote against license, he believed it would be a reform work to have Westerly, and, while he would work and vote against license, he believed it would be a reform work to have Westerly a liquor license town. It is daily demonstrated that prohibition does not prohibit and that the cheapest and most dangerous grades of liquor are dispensed in some, places.

This does not apply to the three deaths in Pawcatuck, two of which caused investigation by reason of suspicious circumstances, which at the time gave ground for the belief that the poison, if any was placed in the whiskey after its purchase from the drug store. Hence the calling of the coroner, the autopsies and chemical analysis of the liquor and stomach contents, the result of which has not been made public. been made publis.

Nor does it apply to the case of the young man in Pawcatuck who drank the fatal dose purely for medicinal the fatal dose purely for medicinal purposes.

In that case the physicians assert positively that death was due to wood alcohol poisoning. The whiskey administered to the young man was supposed to be the "Monogram" brand of whiskey in a sealed bottle, and not sold from bulk as in the other alleged cases. If this whiskey contained the wood alcohol it would indicate that the original contents had been emptied and the bottle refilled with the deadly stuff claimed to have been the cause of other deaths.

There was a report current Monday There was a report current Monday afternoon that the father-in-law of the young man was to bring a sult in damages to a large amount against the

Expected to Have Special Significance Next Sunday-

There was considerable curbstone talk in Westerly, Monday, as to what would be the mode of procedure should Coroner Brown find that the whiskey drank by Larrow and Hood was poisoned, caused their death, and was purchased in Westerly from a druggist named by members of the family of deceased.

It was set forth that the coroner

If was set forth that the coroner could cause the arrest of the alleged seller and have him tried for manslaughter in the state of Connecticut, and that the prosecuting officers of Westerly would have nothing to do with that feature of the case.

The local officers, however, could arrest and prosecute the druggist for the lilegal sale of liquor and for selling poison that was not properly labelled.

It is the duty of the medical examiner to make report to the attorner general and to the town coroner of general and to the town coroner of deaths caused by act, carelessness or neglect of thers. Then it would become the duty of the coroner to hold an inquest and, if deemed advisable, autopsy could be ordered by the attorney general, or the latter official could order investigation without prior action on the part of the medical examiner or coroner. In case the investigation warranted, it would become the duty of the coroner to bring the At the present time there is general condemnation of the illegal liquor traffic in Westerly created by the many deaths alleged to be caused by poisoned whiskey. A prominent member of the town council stated Monday that in his opinion that were a vote to be taken at the present time Westerly would favor license by more than 1,000 majority.

In explanation of the apparent inactivity of Westerly officials in not probing for facts upon which to base prosecutions for the dispensing of alleged "posioned whiskey," it is stated by the medical examiner that in every instance of sudden death in Westerly, attending physicians reported death due to "natural causes."

In case the investigation warranted, it would become the duty of the coroner to bring the case to the district court, where the attorney general would prosecute.

No reports of deaths by the act, carelessness or neglect of others have been brought to the attention of the medical examiner, still, by order of the attorney general he would be required to make investigation, or could on the part of the medical examiner or coroner. In case the investigation warranted, it would become the duty of the coroner to bring the case to the district court, where the attorney general would prosecute.

No reports of deaths by the act, carelessness or neglect of others have been brought to the attention of the medical examiner, still, by order of the attorney general he would be required to make investigation, or could do so on his own volition did he consider it advisable under the circumstance, and take no head of the cerville of death by attending physicians.
